Claims 20-21 are allowed.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 22 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sauces (newly cited) and Hallstrom taken together and as further evidenced by Kesharlal.

Sauces discloses the preparation of tomato butter from raw tomatoes. The raw tomatoes are comminuted and then combined with butter. Cooking is described as an option in the preparation of the tomato. The claim appears to differ from Sauces in the recitation of the inclusion of the plant sterol. Where high cholesterol is a problem for many people, Hallstrom provides for an alternative to butter. Hallstrom teaches a butter substitute that contains phytosterols that is made according to the recipe shown at column 13, lines 18-24. At column 10, lines 58-62, the product is formulated into a margarine product that was favorably compared with conventional margarine. Thus Hallstrom teaches the preparation of a butter substitute for the "do-it-yourself" cook. It would have been obvious to substitute the Hallstrom margarine for the butter in Sauces in order to provide for a lower cholesterol alternative tomato butter. It is appreciated that carotenoids are not mentioned in the references, but tomatoes have long been known as a rich source of carotenoids and Kesharlal is relied upon for evidence of this assertion at column 1, lines 12-15. Further it is appreciated that Sauce is not shown but the product could be used as a sauce by increasing the serving temperature of the tomato butter.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
